

Building bridges for change in complex trauma for children & families

Trauma hurts not only the person but the relationships. In complex situations of wounds and attachment rupture, EMDR child therapy within an integrative perspective will help us build the necessary bridges to help the child reconnect with himself, his history and his family relationship.